

TAURUS: I HAVE

My Tribe

In 2020, Saturn, The Lord Karma, made his first appearance in your house of career and will continue rectifying your professional life as well as how you deal with your superiors until March 7 of 2023. Therefore, the first two months of the year might feel like you are going through your final exams in your career. It was not easy the last three years with the heavy weight of Saturn at the top of your chart, but it is almost over.

There might have been some issues with bosses, superiors, as well as figures of authority, but from March 7 things should get easier in your career, but there is a caveat, merely two weeks after Saturn leaves your house of career, Pluto will make an entrance on March 24 and go back and forth for the next two years between your house of education and career. But more on that later.

Saturn's next place of fixing is your house of friends, companies, social networks, electronics, communities, altruism, technology, and government. The last time Saturn entered that house was 1993 – 1996 as well as 1946-1967, so it is a good idea to go back and see what happened in those years. Generally speaking, Saturn wants to examine and fix your social environment as well as your digital surroundings.

Yes, sounds weird, but the house of friends is also the house of future and artificial intelligence. Maybe it was astrology's way of predicting that one day in the future, our digital gadgets will become our friends. Since Saturn is very practical, he will probably create situations, some might be terribly uncomfortable, to help you identify who are your true friends, what groups or clubs you justly want to associate with and what is your standing in your community or company. You might experience challenges in your current company that would force you to look for a better work environment, or perchance a few friends would show their true colors and betray your trust, prompting you to look for new pals. In other words, you are in search for your true tribe of likeminded people.

As for some good news, we have plenty for you. The North Node, or the Head of the Dragon, continues his transit in your sign which began the end of 2021 and will continue until July 2023. This transit happens once in 19 years and is considered very auspicious. The Dragon could help you reinvent and redefine yourself as well as facilitate your connection to your body. Last time this happened was 2003-2004. Therefore, in the first part of 2023, the North Node can help you connect to people who share your values, interests, and talents. The Dragon can help Saturn work in reconnecting you to new friends and finding your tribe. Imagine the dragon flying you to your Promised Land, filled with Taurus milk and honey.

Jupiter, the giver of gifts, is moving into Taurus for the first time in 12 years in mid-May and will be there for a year. That's extremely helpful in healing your body, helping you to reinvent and rebrand yourself, identifying and fixing issues with your personality, and smoothing all aspects of your life. Just be careful of gluttony or overdoing, as well as being overoptimistic.

Opportunities will come your way, but choose wisely, there is no need to say "yes!" to every option. Jupiter tends to inflate things and since he will be traveling in the house of your body, there is a bit of danger of gaining weight. Best way to override this issue is to offer your body a new physical challenge and let Jupiter inflate your muscles or increase your health and body skills instead of fat tissues.

Best is to teach your body a new skill, let the muscles grow their memory – dancing, yoga, Pilates, a new diet? But wait, let's not jump too fast to May, because until then you are asked to focus on letting go and shedding things you do not need in order to prepare you for the grand expansion. Until mid-May, Jupiter is in your house of mysticism and past lifetimes. This transit can help you tap into your intuition as well as gifts and abilities from previous lives.

Uranus, the awakener who is also known for his unpredictability and chaotic tendencies, is in your sign from 2018 and will be there until 2026. This placement of the ruler of Aquarius in your first house did bring about some major changes in your path and identity. This happens every 84 years and last time it took place was during the Great Depression. While it can make you feel more wild, crazy, funny, and revolutionary, it does bring about an element of unpredictability and disruption, especially with your connection to your body and path in life.

This year Uranus will be moving over Taurus folks born between May 4 – 15 and enable them to break away from old constrictions and reinvent themselves. But, alas, it can also bring some chaos into their lives.
